HOUSE NEARS RACING VOTE

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

WHAT happens when "moralists" with a one-track mind run up against the cold hard facts of government and the restless humanity which government is trying to keep under control, is shown by two separate incidents at Little Rock Tuesday.

Special Interests Played as Futrell Urges 'State First'

Revenue Must Be Concentrated in General Fund, Governor Warns

"NO" FOR PENSIONS
Arkansas' Share Would Cost 9 Millions a Year—5% Sales Tax

LITTLE ROCK.—The legislature is making a stepchild of the general revenue fund, in the opinion of Governor Futrell, and the state government is likely to crack up of its own weight and non-support unless the General Assembly begins to pay more attention to general revenue and less to special interests.

The governor unbureaucratic himself Tuesday on the subjects of revenue, the sales tax, horse racing, slot machines, schools, pension, liquor and "damned infernal hoodlums."

He became so heated that he apologized for "becoming vexed" to the members of the State Farm Debt Adjustment Committee, before which he appeared briefly at noon to hear a request for a $20,000 or $25,000 appropriation to enable the committee to continue its work.

On General Revenue
Regarding general revenue: "The general revenue fund hasn't got any money. It's running on a shoestring now. Its only source is a tax on insurance premiums and franchises. That's what you've got to run your state government."

"New revenue, if the legislature raises any, ought to be turned into the general revenue fund. Then the legislature could appropriate it out to run the state government and put the rest where it is needed."

"The members down there have got their hearts set on something else. One wants it to go to the schools. Another group wants it to go for pensions. Those are worthy causes, but if the revenue is turned into those special funds, it can't be diverted for anything else, no matter how important or necessary it is."

On Pensions
Regarding pensions: "There's appropriation now for the federal government to give old age pensions of $40 to $50 a month, and Arkansas would be asked to pay half of it." The governor banged on the desk. "Arkansas can't do it. It would take $5,000,000, and a five per cent sales tax wouldn't do it, and if it would, there would be no money for anything else."

On the Sales Tax
Regarding the sales tax: "I can't see any hope for the sales tax. The court may hold it constitutional. If it is passed, but as I see it, the only way they could do it in the face of their own decision would be under the income tax ruling, and I understand that wouldn't apply to the sales tax."

On the Budget
Regarding the budget: "The Budget Committee has got to balance its budget with the funds it's got. It is $300,000 short now and it

Battle Over Evidence Against Fisch

Judge Undecided Whether to Hear Taximan's Story

Hauptmann Counsel Claims Fisch Showed Ransom Notes in 1933

HE HAD SHOE-BOX

Witness Says He Saw Fisch Carrying Ransom-Note Container

Copyright Associated Press
FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's defense fighting to prove that the dead Isidor Fisch got the $20,000 ransom, was temporarily balked Wednesday in an attempt to show what Fisch exhibited gold notes in 1933.

At the noon recess a decision on whether Oscar John Bruchmann, Bronx taxi-driver once employed by Fisch, could answer a question pertaining to the alleged gold notes, had not been reached by the court.

Earlier, the defense used a witness to say that Fisch had carried the shoe-box in May, 1933. It was in the shoe-box that Hauptmann claimed Fisch gave him that the ransom money was found.

The defense also called several New Jersey police officers and through them re-emphasized the failure of the authorities to find fingerprints on the kidnap ladder.

Trial Is Fair
FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(AP)—An observer for Herr Adolf Hitler's Nazi government Tuesday interviewed Bruno Richard Hauptmann in the court room, demanding to know if he was a fair trial.

The former German inmate a gun in his left hand, a fair trial of the charge of kidnapping and killing the world's famous baby.

Hauptmann told the Nazi representative that he had no complaint. Dr. Frederick Kirch, described by Lloyd Fisher, Hauptmann's defense attorney, as "a semi-official representative of the Hitler government," was the agent, who immediately dispatched his report to the Fatherland.

The interview Dr. Kirch had with Hauptmann, conducted in German, was the first formal indication that the Hitler government is interested in the fate of the accused murderer of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr.

The conversation between Hauptmann and the Nazi representative, according to Hauptmann's lawyer, Fisher's statement, Tuesday night, was as follows:

Dr. Kirch: Mr. Hauptmann, do you feel that you are receiving a fair trial?

Hauptmann: Well, yes, I have no complaint.

Dr. Kirch: Are you satisfied with your lawyers?

Hauptmann: Generally speaking, yes.

Dr. Kirch: If you are acquitted, what do you intend to do—return to Germany?

Hauptmann: If the German government will permit me to come back.

Confers with Lawyer
After court adjourned, Dr. Kirch visited Fisher's law office and submitted a more detailed questionnaire designed to ascertain in detail Hauptmann's attitude towards the prosecution, the 71-year-old jurist who is presiding at the murder trial, and the acts of defense his lawyers have planned and put into execution.

"Dr. Kirch," declared Fisher, "came to the trial in a semi-official capacity for the German government. He came to this country originally to look after the interests of his government, which is unofficially underwriting the Hannas-Schmelling fight, and also to make some preliminary arrangements for this country's participation in the Olympic games to be held in Germany."

Dr. Kirch also indicated to Hauptmann's lawyer that his report will be published in the Tagesspiegel, Berlin newspaper, which is regarded as the official voice for the Hitler government.

Radicals Thrown Out in "Purge" of AAA Home Office

Brain Truster Jerome Frank and Four Other Lawyers Dropped

THEORY VS. FACT?

Chester Davis' Conservatives Come Out Victorious in Feud

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A conflict between the "right" and "left" camps of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration (AAA) resulted Wednesday in the virtual ousting of Jerome Frank, known as an original Brain Truster, and four other officials.

The shakeup was described as a victory for the more conservative school represented by Farm Administrator Chester Davis.

In addition to Frank, those separated from the AAA included attorneys under Frank, Albert Hiss, former secretary to Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, Lee Pressman, Francis Shen and Victor Rothman, and Gardner Jackson of the Consumers Council.

Result of Friction
The formal announcement by the AAA said that henceforth the legal work of the department and the Adjustment Administration would be handled by the regular Department of Agriculture solicitor Seth Thomas.

An AAA official said that Frank was expected to announce his resignation. For some time there has been friction between Frank's division, the Consumers Council, and the administrator's office. Several times the dispute went to Secretary Wallace for settlement.

Viewpoints Clash
Frank and those who sided with him charged that marketing agreements and crop control programs favor the handler of farm products and the large landowners. The Davis viewpoint was that much of the criticism comes from men whose knowledge of farming is limited to theory and that they have hampered the efforts to restore agricultural prosperity.

Davis in his announcement, said the Commodities Division will be broken up into several smaller divisions, each reporting directly to the administration's office. The Operating Council will consist of Secretary Wallace and Davis as co-heads, Solicitor Thomas and the following heads of the various sections:

A. G. Black, livestock; Ward M. Buckles, finance; Cully A. Cobb, cotton; Victor Christgau, commodities; purchase, farm labor, drouth and other emergency programs; J. B. Huston, tobacco, sugar, peanuts and rice; Geo. A. Farrell, wheat and other grains; Alfred D. Stedeman, information; Jesse W. Trapp, dairy; H. R. Tolley, planning, and the Consumers Council.

President Played by Long in Georgia

Upper House 'Apologizes' for Lower House's Invitation

ATLANTA, Ga.—(AP)—Described in an apologetic telegram sent to President Roosevelt by two state senators as the "greatest demagogue of all times," Senator Huey P. Long Tuesday repeated to a cheering audience, which filled the chamber of the House of Representatives, his share-the-wealth program.

Sometimes laughing, sometimes scowling as he screamed forth his message, the senator spoke for more than an hour and announced that he would introduce his plan in the senate "in a few days."

When the audience sensed that he was about to stop talking, there were

Senate Revolt in Committee Fails

2-Billion-Dole Alternate Bill Dies in Appropriations Group

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A Democratic attempt to scuttle the administration's work relief bill by substituting a 2-billion-dollar dole was lost by a tie vote in the senate appropriations committee Wednesday after it first had been adopted.

In the meantime the administration's differences with the American Federation of Labor resounded in the capital as Roosevelt endorsed NRA Chairman Clay Williams, whose resignation the labor group had demanded.

F. D. Replies to Labor
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The split between the administration and the American Federation of Labor was widened Tuesday when President Roosevelt pointedly told that organization that some decisions concerning labor were for him alone to make.

The president spoke directly of the Automobile Labor Board headed by Leo Wolman, pointing out that it was for him to say whether the board was fulfilling its duties and should be continued.

A letter containing this statement was his answer to the federation's demand that the board be abandoned because, the A. F. of L. said, its employee elections and the method of collective bargaining it provides were illegal.

The release by the White House of an exchange of correspondence between the president and Charlton Ogburn, federation attorney, regarding the Wolman board, also apparently was a presidential answer to the federation's claim it was not consulted in regulations leading to renewal of the code.

The White House action was interpreted further as a defense of Donald R. Hieberg, Emergency Council director, who was lambasted by organized labor for his part in the auto code renewal.

Ogburn's letter asking abolition of the board was dated January 28, three days before the code was renewed. The reply went into the mail Monday.

Green also wrote a letter to the president regarding labor's proposals for the renewed code.

From these two, the president said last Friday, he got an ample understanding of labor's position.

Waldo Noses Out Bobcats 34 to 32

Hope Rallies to Tie Score, But Loses in Final Minute

A desperate Bobcat rally in the final quarter fell short two points, enabling Waldo High School to defeat Hope Tuesday night in a hard-fought basketball game, 34 to 32.

After trailing throughout the first three quarters, the Bobcats rallied to tie the score with only one minute left to play.

Waldo broke the deadlock and moved up two points as the whistle ended the game.

It was the Bobcat's second defeat of the season, having lost to Texarkana several nights ago at Texarkana. One of the largest crowds of the season witnessed the game, played at the high school gymnasium.

Washington defeated Blewett High School in a preliminary contest.

May Compromise City Auto Claim

Council Offers $50 for Tires That Police Shot Off Truck

The city council Tuesday night proposed to pay $50 of an $80.50 claim for damages to a couple of truck tires, punctured by police gun bullets several nights ago in an effort to halt an alleged drunken driver.

The only dissenting vote was cast by Alderman Dr. F. D. Henry. Aldermen Gosnell and Keith were absent.

It was brought out that the truck was driven by Claude Reese. Officers said Reese drove the truck into a lamp post in the downtown section of Hope and then sped away.

Officers gave chase, following him several blocks on South Main. When he failed to heed police commands to halt, officers fired. Bullets punctured two rear tires. Reese was arrested for drunkenness and reckless driving. He was fined the following Monday in municipal court.

The truck, however, was not owned by Reese. Newt Bundy filed claims for damages.

Joe R. Floyd, FERA disbursing agent, appeared before the council and appealed for funds to help defray expenses for rent on FERA headquarters.

A committee was named to work out an agreement between city and county officials to bare the expense. Blasingame & Spoonamore submitted a bid of 25 cents per ton for scrap iron from the city's junk yard.

City Treasurer Charles Reynerson filed a report Tuesday night showing a balance of $2,294.49 in the city treasury as of February 1.

$500 Tax Per Day Is Fixed; Vote Is Set for Thursday

One-Third of Tax Would Support Proposed Old-Age Pensions

TURN BACK LIQUOR
Package-Sale Measure Referred Again to Committee for Study

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Fighting down all amendments not agreed to by the racing bloc, the house Wednesday by common consent prepared to get the Hampton horse-racing measure into shape for final action Thursday.

Only two amendments were approved during the whole morning given over to the bill.

One amendment would make the daily tax on race tracks $500 instead of $100; and the other would allot one-third of the revenue for old-age pensions.

The senate began consideration of the bill providing for the sterilization of insane or habitual criminals ending for the time being its discussion of the sales tax bill.

Liquor Back to Committee
The Thorn liquor bill, shaped to legalize package sales of liquor in private stores and sale by the drink in restaurants, hotels and clubs, which had been favorably reported by the house temperance committee Tuesday night, was referred back to the committee by the house Wednesday after a flurry of debate on the floor.

It was charged on the floor that the bill had been "hurriedly considered."

The senate took up consideration of a bill which would tax chain stores, but the bill was sent to the judiciary committee to study as to its constitutionality.

The senate again took up the sales tax bill and adopted an amendment which would limit the levy of the tax to July 1, 1937, and then took up for consideration an amendment which would exempt sales within 12 miles of a state line.

House Group for Liquor
LITTLE ROCK.—The senate temperance committee voted Tuesday night to make no recommendation on Senate Bill 145, Evans' state-owned liquor store measure, until Monday night, when S. B. 101, Dillon's licensed package store proposal, will be before the committee for hearing.

The senate temperance committee and the house temperance committee were scheduled to meet simultaneously to consider proposed whisky legislation, but the house committee met earlier, before opponents of legalization of liquor sales assembled.

The representatives hurriedly recommended passage of four liquor bills which they did not take time to read. The bills were: H. B. 197 (Clerget), H. B. 85 (Christian), and H. B. 153 and H. B. 154 by Thorn and others.

Agreeing that they would not meet with the senate committee, the representatives withdrew into a rear corner of the Hotel Marion ballroom with the admitted intention of avoiding a lengthy hearing.

One of the committeemen said he understood that opponents of the bill had a "bunch of women from New York city" on hand to speak in opposition to the bills.

Members of the committee present, all of whom voted that the bills be referred back to the house with the "do pass" recommendation were: Thomas, chairman; Christian, Beck, Dawson, Woolsey, Campbell and Clark.

Expected Crowd Falls
Although arrangements had been made for accommodating a large crowd at the house committee old at the senate committee meeting a comparatively small group was present. The hearing was opened by Louis Tarlowski, Little Rock lawyer, who said he had drafted S. B. 145 for Governor Futrell at the governor's direction and who explained the provisions of the proposed measure. The bill provides for operation of the licensed liquor stores under the direction of a liquor commissioner appointed by the governor. The stores would be managed by employees appointed by the commissioner, he said.

The first speaker in opposition to the bill was Dr. C. A. Gilbert of Texarkana, secretary-treasurer of the Baptist Sunday School Committee of the American Baptist Association. Dr. Gilbert, who said he was representing thousands of persons in Arkansas who are opposed to legalization of liquor, declared the Evans bill would "make the state of Arkansas a competitor of every bootlegger in the state" and that legalization of whisky sales would "start the pretest turmoil in the history of Arkansas."

"You are trying to regulate a baby you're afraid of," Dr. Gilbert said. "In the name of producing revenue,"

YOUR HEALTH

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

More Difficulty Met in Repair of Hip.

An injury to the hip joint is one of the most serious you can suffer. Although it is a ball and socket joint, like that of the shoulder, it does not move as easily, but the socket is deeper and the structures moving in the joint are larger.

Therefore, an injured hip joint is more difficult to correct than an injured shoulder joint.

After the torn or damaged tissues have been healed, the doctor or physiotherapist tries to restore motion by reproducing the movements common to the joint in time of health. They involve rotating the leg inward and outward, drawing the leg upward and extending it.

These motions are carried out slowly and steadily, but never to the point where they are seriously resisted by the patient.

The following exercises are recommended:

1. Lie face down, leg supported off the bed, knee straight, try to draw the knee forward toward the hip with the help of gravity (no resistance being used by the operator).

2. Lie on your back, operator lifts the leg (the knee straight) and you force it down.

3. Lie on side to be exercised, a piece of powdered cardboard under the leg, the operator holds the other leg. Now bring the knee to the chest.

4. Same as exercise 3, except that you bring the leg back.

5. Lying on your back, leg on a piece of powdered cardboard, move the leg directly sideways, without lifting the foot, keeping knee straight and foot up.

6. Lie on your back, same as in exercise 5, except that you bring the leg in.

7. Lie on the good side, operator holds the affected leg up, knee straight, now bring it down to the other side.

8. Sit with knees bent, legs hanging, raise the leg to the side away from the other leg, keeping knees together.

9. Sit with legs hanging, raise the leg to the knee.

10. Lie on your back, heels on powdered cardboard, knees at right angles, straighten the knees and return to first position.

11. Lie on your back, knees straight, raise both legs to an angle of 90 degrees and move them forward and back, alternating.

12. Lie on your back, knees straight, raise both legs to an angle of 45 degrees, then 90 degrees, back to 45 degrees and to position.

13. Sit, body erect, knees straight, reach forward and touch the toes. Stand, grasp a chair for support, swing leg loosely from the hip.

One of the best exercises for the hip joint is bicycling.

Sees War's Madness All Across Society—This Novel Shows Scenes in Fervent England

In "The World Went Mad," an understanding of the real meaning of war by showing how it affects many different people in widely separated walks of life. Instead of following the fortunes of one family, he gets dozens of people into his book and draws a picture of war itself rather than of any individual.

He shows us, first, an ordinary upper class English family whose hopes and happiness are wrecked by the war. Then he jumps to the provincial town and shows, briefly, some of the profiteering and phlegmatic that war projects into business and politics. After that he visits Liverpool and shows a gang of slum dwellers using the Lusitania as an excuse for looting the shop of a luckless German storekeeper.

What we get, then, is less a novel than a series of loosely connected glimpses at a country in the process

Income Tax in a Nutshell

WHO? Single persons who had net income of $1,000 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more, and married couples who had net income of $2,500 or more or gross income of $5,000 or more must file returns.

WHEN? The filing period begins January 1 and ends March 15, 1935.

WHERE? Collector of internal revenue for the district in which the person lives or has his principal place of business.

HOW? See instructions on forms 1040A and 1040.

WHAT? Four per cent normal tax on the amount of net income in excess of the personal exemption, credit for dependents, earned income credit, dividends of domestic corporations subject to taxation, and interest on obligations of the United States and obligations of instrumentalities of the United States. Surplus on surplus net income in excess of $4,000.

NO. 2 FORMS FOR MAKING RETURNS

Forms for filing returns for income for 1934 have been sent to persons who filed income returns last year. Failure to receive a form however, does not relieve a taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay the tax on time, on or before March 15 if the return is made on the calendar year basis, as is the case with most individuals.

Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, from the offices of collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors. Persons whose net income for 1934 was derived chiefly from salary or wages and was not in excess of $5,000 should make out their returns on form 1040A, a single sheet. Persons whose income was in excess of $5,000, or, regardless of amount, was derived from a business, profession, rents or sale of property, are required to use a larger form, 1040. Failure to use the proper form presents difficulties to both the taxpayer and the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Therefore, it is emphasized that a taxpayer engaged in business or profession from which he derives a net income of less than $5,000 is required to use the larger form.

The return must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer has his legal residence or principal place of business before midnight of March 15, 1935. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or in four equal installments due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15.

SILKEN SPINDLES

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GALE HENDERSON, pretty and 23, works in a silk mill. She and her 20-year-old brother, PHIL, support their invalid father.

STEVE MEYERS who also works in the mill, asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days.

Gale goes skating, breaks through the ice and is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE whose father, now dead, built the mill.

Brian has come home after two years in Paris to enter the mill. Gale disappears before he learns her name.

VICKY THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, schemes to capture Brian.

Gale's father becomes ill in the night. Gale gets little sleep and is late at work next morning.

FISHER, the foreman, tells her that if it happens again she'll lose her job.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVIII

THE morning wore on slowly. Gale worked mechanically, wishing her head would stop feeling the way it did, wishing the room wasn't so warm or so noisy, wishing that just for one minute she could sink down in a chair and lean back and close her eyes and forget the flying spindles.

"It wouldn't have done any good," she thought, "to tell Fisher about Father being sick."

No, it wouldn't have done any good. And she couldn't be late again—not after that threat. It made her job seem unusually precious—the thought that she might lose it—and Gale bent and snapped off a bobbin, her hands moving swiftly in spite of the ache in her shoulders.

She couldn't afford to lose her job—

When lunch time came instead of going to the cafeteria she went into the wash room where there was an old couch against one of the walls. It was back in the shadows and Gale laid down on it and pressed her fingers over her eyes.

Her head felt as though something were pushing down on it. It had felt that way all morning. She wasn't sleepy now, but there were pains like little knife-jabs in her arms and in her shoulders.

The door opened and Gale turned to see who had come in. A tall girl stood facing her. She wore a blue uniform like Gale's, but it was rather short for her.

The girl had dark hair and eyebrows that looked as though they had been drawn on with a pencil and her upper teeth were slightly prominent. She wasn't a pretty girl and she wasn't homely. Her name was Leota Boller.

THE newcomer moved toward the couch and looked down at Gale. "All in, kid?" she asked sympathetically.

"Tired," Gale told her. "I had to be up most of the night. My father was sick."

"Gee, that's tough. It's tough when anybody's sick, all right," Leota Boller took a vanity case from her pocket and went to the mirror. She inspected her face critically, opened the case and began carefully powdering her forehead. She turned then and asked, "Had your lunch?"

"I don't want any," Gale told her. "I'd rather stay here and rest."

Leota applied the powder puff to her cheeks and chin. When the entire surface of her face had assumed a pinky-whiteness she seemed satisfied and put the vanity case back into her pocket.

"You oughtn't to try to work today," she volunteered. "You ought've taken the day off."

"I couldn't," Gale told her. "Even if I wasn't afraid to ask for time off I couldn't afford to. There's another doctor's bill to pay now and I'll have to buy medicine. They're enough bills as it is. I can't afford to miss a single day's work."

The other girl sighed. "Gee, it's tough all right," she said again. Suddenly she crossed the room to a locker, opened it and took something out. A moment later she was back, holding out a chocolate bar toward Gale.

"Here," she said, "eat this. I brought it for lunch and then forgot all about it. It'll do you good. Chocolate's real nourishing, you know."

Gale looked doubtful. "I don't believe—" she began.

But Leota insisted. "Oh, go ahead and eat it! You'll feel better—honest, you will, Gee, if you don't eat anything you're liable to keel over like that Connie Baum did the other day. Did you hear about that?"

Gale broke off a bit of the chocolate bar and ate it. She said, "Yes, I heard about Connie. Thanks, Leota."

"Forget it! We're all in the same boat here. Gee, the way they work us and the little dough we get! It's a crime, that's what it is!"

Gale sighed. "I guess there isn't much we can do about it."

SUDDENLY Leota drew nearer. If Gale hadn't been so tired she would certainly have noticed the crafty look that had come into the other girl's eyes. She would certainly have noticed the change in Leota's tone. As it was Gale was entirely unsuspecting.

"That's where you're wrong," Leota said. "All wrong. There's a lot we can do about it."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean I think it's time to do something about the way we're treated here—and the way they cut our pay for every little thing, and let people out and make the rest of us work harder. I heard how Fisher bawled you out this morning. Gee, that was fierce—the big bum! I don't see why you let him get away with it."

"How could I help it?"

"There's a way!" Leota said darkly. "I'm telling you—things aren't going to go on like this forever!"

Gale looked at her curiously. "I don't know what you're talking about," she said.

The other girl's eyes narrowed. "Can you keep your mouth shut?"

"Yes."

"You're sure of that?"

"Why, of course."

"Well, then—I'll tell you something. But you mustn't say a word to anyone—not a word. Promise?"

"Yes."

Leota's voice had dropped to an undertone. "We're going to organize," she said. "That's what we're going to do."

Fully, friend, some hearts are very sore
And quiver at the lightest blow or touch;
Is it, then, asking of you quite too much,
That you should speak your careless words no more?
Ere now a sad life feeds on crumbs of hope
And how it starves amid a cold disdain;
Note how in solitude the soul will moan,
Yet won by kindness to its joy again;
And kind words cost so little—
While a smile is easier born than scornful word or frown,
Yet half the world seems trying all the while
To crowd the poorer, weaker neighbors down.
Oh, strange neglect and woeful lack of thought;
Was this the lesson that the Master taught?

'Little Minister' at Saenger Sunday

Katharine Hepburn Starred in J. M. Barrie's Immortal Story

Katharine Hepburn is now starred in the most colorful production of her remarkable career, "The Little Minister," coming Sunday and Monday to the Saenger which is the picture of Sir James Barrie's immortal story.

It was necessary to construct an entire Scotch village, the town of Thurns—or Kierriemuir, the modern name for the town. A reproduction of the village in its entirety rests quietly in the shadows of the California Hills, a work of art on the part of experts on Scottish architecture and landscape, who worked with the studio scenic experts.

The picture gives many views of the exquisitely intimate village of Thurns. Barrie's birthplace, it is shown in contrast with the famous Rintoul Castle, which was built after the style of the old Norman castles, with high ceilings, stone-mullioned and leaded glass windows and huge stone stairways.

In the village are seen the homes of the poor weavers, the two hall, the public square, Rob Dow's blacksmith shop, old Nanny's humble cottage, the manse of the Little Minister the kirk and the shops, and on a hill-top the old mill and the look-out scenes where the striking weavers kept a watch each day for the coming of the soldiers.

Against this background Katharine Hepburn's greatest starring vehicle, Barrie's "The Little Minister," recreates the quaint charm and events in the village of Thurns, with all the moving romance of which Barrie alone is capable—and which Miss Hepburn so ably interprets with her inexhaustible resource of power.

John Alan portrays the Little Minister, and Alan Hale plays Rob Dow.

You are attempting to legalize and restrict a known evil. I'd rather be buried unhonored and unknown in a potter's field than have any part in passing this bill in the name of revenue.

Dr. Gilbert criticized the plan suggested to Governor Futrell for the manufacture of whisky with convict labor at the abandoned penitentiary "twalls." He said such a proposal called for the arrest and conviction of a man for a crime, and then putting him to work at a task which would produce a "criminal product." He said the legislators had apparently favored such a proposal Monday, but that the "tide had turned."

"Go the whole hog or none at all!" he shouted in reference to the Evans bill. "If you propose to legalize one wrong, legalize them all."

John H. Glass of Little Rock, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League in Arkansas, said those favoring passage of the state store bill pointed out the evils of the package store bill and that package store advocates could see no merit in the state store bill. He said he agreed with both.

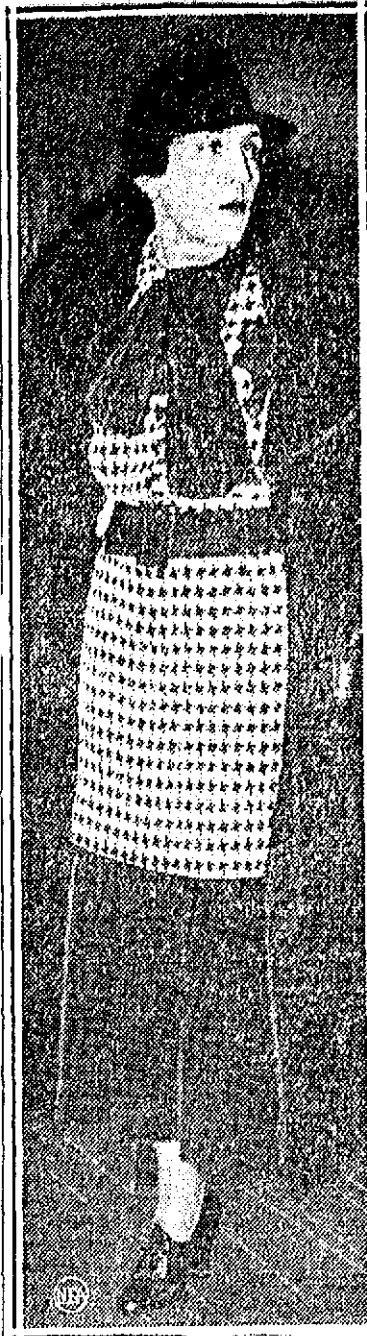

He declared that liquor interests had aided in the past to legalize the sale of their products, and that now they were asking the sponsorship of the state.

Dizzy Dean Wants to Be Traded Off

If St. Louis Won't Pay Him $25,000 "Somebody Else Will"

NEW YORK—Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, his own and most everybody else's favorite ball player, rose in righteous wrath Tuesday and suggested that, since the St. Louis Cardinals are unwilling to pay him $25,000 he wants for pitching this season, they sell or trade him to another club.

The great man declares he isn't particular about which National club so long as it wasn't the Braves or the Phillies. He said he was sure the rest would pay him the wampum the Cardinals won't, and consider it a pleasure.

Several managers attending the National League's schedule meeting at the Waldorf, showed immediate interest when Dizzy's words reached their ears.

"I'll give St. Louis $100,000 for Dean right this minute," declared Will Terrell the Giant boss.

He couldn't carry out that threat on the spot however, for Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals, was closeted with the rest of the National League owners, busily drafting this season's playing schedule and settling the Boston bafuddlement.

Terry's eyes gleamed though, at the thought of how the lanky, grinning fellow who won 30 games last season and almost beat the Giants out of the pennant in person, would look on his pitching staff. There were similar gleams in the glims of many another manager around the lobby. Several of them had made offers for either Dizzy or his brother, Paul, earlier in the winter, and had been told that neither would be traded or sold.

daulous introducers of this resolution, Representatives T. V. Williams of Coffee county, and W. K. (Billy) Barrett of Richmond county, the latter the well known bridge player.

Senator Long launched into his speech, saying, "I don't undertake to tell you we'll bring you a paradise, but in this day of plenty, this land is not for the favored few, for greed, and for super-greed."

He criticized some phases of the national administration's recovery program, particularly its farm program, and said that "when Mr. Hoover left the presidency—and he was bad enough for me—the national debt was $19,000,000,000, but today it's $29,000,000,000."

"And right now we have a proposition to raise it to $34,000,000,000. That shows where we've landed today," Long said a part of the program he

Promises Lure Millions
The "Huey Long jitters" are aggravated by a threat of such further complications, Dr. Townsend, Upton Sinclair and other popular leaders—demagogues if you like—who have been attracting large followings with astonishing rapidity.

The combined millions of their followers reach an uncomfortably large total.

Many of the serious thinkers here are increasingly worried over the possibility that a top-rank demagogue may come along and lure those millions into camp with wild promises of the Huey Long and Townsend variety, for they recall that Hitler's rise and sway in Germany has been achieved mainly by unfillable promises.

Roosevelt started promising in a big way, with his feet so firmly planted on the ground that his progress has been very slow. He is now being out-promised all over the place and such a startling number of folks respond to these promises that it's just a big fat guess where it will end.

But the potentialities are such that more and more sane, rational folks in this government are expressing private fears of fascism.

May Swing Townsend
Huey is the outstanding "land of should manage to combine forces with Dr. Townsend, whose old-age pension scheme becomes daily a more painful Capitol Hill headache, the "Huey Long jitters" would develop into a nightmare.

Not being in the confidence of either the senator or the doctor, I can't predict that the Kingfish is destined to be the official white hope of the Townsend clubs. But I wouldn't at all be surprised.

The first poet to assume the title of poet laureate of England was Geoffrey Chaucer, who, in 1389, received a royal grant of a yearly allowance of wine as one of the perquisites of the office.

Cold Facts about Quick Starting

Confirmed by 1½ Million Users

From the very start, we avoided making extravagant claims for Aerotype ESSO. There was no doubt in our own minds that it would outperform all other motor car fuels. But we wanted Aerotype ESSO, itself, to prove what it would do.

Therefore, we introduced it under an unconditional guarantee—offering to refund the premium paid for it, to any user who did not find it the most efficient motor car fuel he had ever used.

Quick Starting a Feature

Among the things Aerotype ESSO had to prove were that it would "fire" faster, start quicker, and deliver peak performance in less time and with less "warm-up" than any other fuel made.

How well it demonstrated its ability to fulfill these requirements is disclosed by the following simple and conclusive data:

*Cash Refund Guarantee discontinued December 31, 1934 on uncontroverted ruling of Petroleum Administrative Board.

INTRODUCTORY GUARANTEE OFFER IN FORCE—DEC. 1 TO DEC. 31, 1934
No. purchasing Aerotype ESSO	1,529,752
No. refund requests for all reasons (less than 1 out of every 10,000 who bought).	113
Users endorsing product	1,529,639
Amount of Aerotype ESSO sold (approximately)	$3,000,000.00
Total amount of cash refunds	$31.20

This overwhelming acceptance of Aerotype ESSO thus furnishes indisputable evidence of its superiority.

Consequently, in urging other motorists to try Aerotype ESSO we do so with the conviction that they will be as favorably impressed as the millions now using it.

Half across the world I went,
Hunting in the rain;
Through the mists of Brittany,
Up the hills of Spain.

NOT because of lands to see,

Not to find a higher road,
Walking up the sky.

Where I could walk in some night,

Nerves Taut as Hauptmanns Face Trial Crisis

Greater even than the strain which Bruno Hauptmann shows here after an ordeal on the witness stand is that shown by his wife, leaning toward him for a few whispered words in Flemington, N. J., courtroom. Between the haggard and worn wife and the defendant sit the prisoner's ever-vigilant guardians, Deputy Hovey Low and a state trooper.

Hands Show Strain on Hauptmann Bar Baby Visit To Hauptmann

Sole trace of the strain under which Bruno Hauptmann labored as he underwent his ordeal on the witness stand was the rigid-clasping of his hands. Tightly gripping his left hand with his right, he sat in the witness chair, answering questions slowly and carefully as he fought to break through the net of evidence woven around him.

Fail to Uphold Hauptmann Alibi

Two Hauptmann alibi witnesses who failed to give conclusive evidence that the accused was in their Bronx bakery the night of the Lindbergh kidnaping are shown here on the steps of the Flemington, N. J., courthouse. Christian and Kate Fredericksen were not certain enough that Hauptmann called for his wife, employed by them, that they would swear to it on the witness stand.

All dressed up for a visit with his father was Manfred Hauptmann when, as shown here, his mother carried him from their rooming house in Flemington, N. J. But Bruno Hauptmann didn't get to see "Bubi," the warden banning the visit on the grounds that visits from the child always upset the prisoner.

Gets a Medal; For Tumbling?

A proud girl is Paulette Goddard, Charlie Chaplin's leading lady, shown here just after she won a medal in the Lake Arrowhead Ski club's two-mile endurance contest. And in spite of the fact that Paulette seems to have taken at least one tumble during the race.

Landing First Survivors of Mohawk Wreck

Many of those rescued in the liner Mohawk disaster were reported in critical condition from exposure to the near-zero weather. Above police are pictured removing some of the rescued brought ashore at Staten Island, N. Y., by the Coast Guard Cutter Champlain.

Claims Millions in 'Widow' Suit

A "wedding ceremony" in which the bridegroom also was the pastor was described in the suit of Geraldine Ott, above, Beverly Hills, Calif., singer for a widow's third of the $13,000,000 estate of Bertrand L. Taylor, late paper magnate, in New York. Miss Ott, who bases her claim on the alleged common-law marriage, was killed $10,000 by Taylor.

Poderjay Is Carefully Guarded

Ivan Poderjay (right), the romantic Yugo-Slav ex-officer who faces trial in New York on a charge of bigamy as a result of his marriage to the missing woman lawyer, Agnes Tutverson, is pictured above in Vienna with one of his guards prior to starting his extradition journey to the United States. He was confined in the ship's brig during the Atlantic crossing.

Parole Official Rescued From Fleeing Felons

Warren Atherton (third from left), member of the California parole board seized as a hostage when a group of convicts snarled and battered their way out of San Quentin penitentiary, is shown in this NEA Service radiophoto at Valley Ford, Calif., telling of officers about his experience after the escapees had been cornered and arrested. The officers are shown with weapons taken from the convicts and stand in front of the bullet-riddled car used in the futile 54-mile journey toward freedom.

Post Seeks Record in Strato Hop

Los Angeles to New York in seven hours, flying at an altitude of 30,000 feet! That is the sensational feat, cutting three hours from the present mark, which Wiley Post, one-eyed globe-girdler, speed demon, hopes to accomplish, carrying a limited load of mail. The cabin of his streamlined Winnie Mae, top photo, in which he will make the attempt, has been made airtight to save oxygen in the stratosphere. The map shows the regular TWA mail route which Post will follow. The airman is shown below in his specially constructed suit of rubberized balloon silk, built to prevent possible bursting of heart, lungs, and other organs in the lowered pressure of the stratosphere.

He'll Aid Alibi of Hauptmann

A friend expected to be a strong alibi witness for Bruno Hauptmann is Hans Kloeppenberg, above, who the defendant declares sat in the Hauptmann home playing a guitar at a "first Saturday" music festival, a German custom, on the night that the state says the prisoner received the $50,000 ransom money.

Mohawk's Captain

Captain Joseph E. Wood, veteran commander of the liner Mohawk, tried vainly to open his ship after getting passengers and crew into life boats following the collision off Sea Girl, N. J.

Queen of Famed Snow Carnival

From the snuffling valleys a mile below, where flowers bloom and orange groves thrive, this queen will lure her subjects to snow-clad peaks for the famed winter sports carnival on Los Angeles county playground at Big Pines. There Miss Jane Frances Mullen will reign over the snow pastimes, including ski champion ships, starting Feb. 2.

Floyd Hamilton Is Taken by Officers

Brother of Raymond Surrenders Without Shot, at Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La.—(P)—Floyd Hamilton, youthful desperado, and partner of the Southwest's most notorious cutthroats, was arrested while seated in a bus here Tuesday night. His capture was in marked contrast to the hectic pistol battle in which he and his brothers escaped officers at Dallas Monday.

"Don't shoot," young Floyd said as two deputy sheriffs entered the bus and poked guns into his mid-section. "I haven't got a gun."

Floyd is under federal indictment on charges of aiding and abetting Clyde Barrow, the notorious bandit who was slain in north Louisiana last spring with his gun-woman companion Bonnie Parker.

Floyd, officers said, was suspected of helping his brother Monday in the holdup of a bank in Carthage, Texas.

The brothers escaped a hail of bullets when they were ambushed at a Dallas apartment Monday night. Officers found $400 in bills and almost $100 in silver in Floyd when he was searched at the parish jail. Most of the money was concealed in shoes, socks and trouser legs.

Floyd was seated in the bus directly behind the driver's seat when Deputy Sheriff Bert Stone and Will Prudhomme of Caddo Parish (Shreveport) who were making a routine observation of the passengers, noticed him inside.

They stepped in quickly, shoved guns to his side, and said, "Come on, Floyd."

Floyd's hands shot upward.

"Don't shoot," he cried, "I haven't got a gun."

State May Lose One Prison Farm

Futrell Threatens to Furlough 500 Men if Financing Fails

LITTLE ROCK.—Governor Futrell Tuesday warned the joint budget committee that if the legislature does not take steps immediately to acquire the Wright plantation in Jefferson county, or make other provisions for caring for the more than 500 convicts quartered there, he would be compelled to furlough them.

The property is being operated by the state penal system, under a lease, as a part of Tucker prison farm. The Deeming Investment company of Kansas City is offering the tract, consisting of about 6,500 acres, to the state for $250,000 cash. Otherwise, it will be sold to the FERA at $40 an acre for use as subsistence homestead colony.

R. O. Deeming, head of the company, announced.

"It is up to the legislature to do something about it," Governor Futrell said. "The situation is acute, and a plan should be worked out to raise the money necessary and buy the farm."

Mr. Deeming indicated he would consider favorably an appropriation to buy the property on an amortization plan if the price and annual payments were sufficient to permit refinancing of outstanding obligations of his company on the property.

"I'm trying to play ball with the state," Mr. Deeming said. "This property was originally purchased by the state for $367,000, but only one payment was made on it, and that was in 1931. Since then, I have received crop share payments as rental."

In 1922 the legislature passed an act permitting the acquisition of the purchase contract and return of the title either to my company or to the Waterloo Drainage District. The provisions of that act have not been carried out, and in my opinion, the title still rests with the state.

some, revenue that it's not getting now."

On Liquor

Regarding liquor: "You know and everybody knows that liquor is being sold all the time in Arkansas. It is being sold in the damned infernal roadhouses, which are places of debauchery and gambling."

"I can't for the life of me understand," he said in exasperation, "people thinking that just because they've got a statute on the books they've got prohibition."

The governor subsided, laughed and picked up his coat.

"Excuse me, gentlemen," he said. "It gets me vexed, these things."

He departed.

Tenant Farm Union Agents Are Freed

Four Organizers Given Verdict of Acquittal at Wynne, Ark.

WYNNE, Ark.—(P)—The Southern Tenant Farmers Union won its first victory with east Arkansas officers Tuesday when four union organizers were given directed verdicts of acquittal in circuit court on their appeals from justice court fines.

The four, L. M. Mills and W. H. Stultz, white, and two negroes, R. T. Butler and A. B. Brookins, had been fined $50 each in a justice court last November on charges of obtaining money by false pretenses in the solicitation of initiation fees and dues for membership in the Union of Sharecroppers.

The state charged that the union was not a corporation, as had been represented. The defense lawyer, C. T.

Carpenter, produced what he said was the charter of a benevolent general welfare corporation, obtained in White county.

Judge Nell Killough instructed the jury to return a verdict of acquittal.

The four also are appealing justice court fines of $50 each on charges of disturbing labor. This charge was continued until the September term.

A case involving the charges of enticing labor was postponed to the next court term when Prosecuting Attorney Denver Dudley objected to its dismissal.

Ward H. Rodgers, another organizer, was tried in justice court at Lepanto Wednesday on a charge of barratry, or causing disorder among neighbors. Lucien Koch, director of Commonwealth college, Mena, Ark., will be tried on a similar charge.

Both were arrested Saturday as the result of a sharecroppers' rally at Lepanto. They were fined $50 each on charges of obstructing streets and sidewalks. They will appeal that conviction, as well as the ruling on the barratry count, if they are found guilty.

A "march" to Harrisburg, Poinsett county seat, by tenant farmers has been planned by union leaders for Thursday. Rodgers announced that a meeting would be held there at 1 p. m. and that a committee would be appointed to call on Federal Emergency Relief Administration officials for immediate relief.

A "peaceful rally" is planned, but Poinsett officials said extra guards would be on duty.

Early Feed Crop Urged in Nevada

Spring Oats Recommended by Nevada County Agent J. L. Hiler

PRESCOTT, Ark.—Farmers are faced with the necessity of producing an early crop of feed this spring, states J. L. Hiler, Nevada county agent, as never before. Careful attention to the management of these early crops, and to the variety used will pay dividends in increased yields and relief from exorbitant feed bills.

The first crop to be considered for early feed is, of course, spring oats. Varieties used should be of Red Rust-proof type, such as the Fulghum and Burt. Usually the northern varieties are late, apt to suffer from rust and are only light yielders, though they are sometimes used for hay to a good advantage.

It should be remembered that poor preparation of land and poor land itself cannot be offset by the use of larger amounts of seed. Poor land requires more seed for a good stand than good land, for the oats will stool more on the better land. Experiment station results recommend the use of not less than two bushels per acre on any land.

Barnyard manure is the best fertilizer obtainable for the use of oats. It should be disked or harrowed in well before seeding. Commercial fertilizers are profitable on most soil types, the nitrate giving the greatest results although the application of superphosphate and potash will increase the yields from 75 to 150 pounds of nitrate should be applied just as the main growth starts in the spring. Oats planted on land used for cotton the previous year where the cotton was fertilized, uses some of the residue fertilizer and gives good results.

The use of oats as a feed crop should be fitted in with every farm rotation both because of the quality of feed produced and the sureness of the crop.

Another crop to be considered for early feed is an early maturing corn variety such as Minnesota 13 or the Funk's 90 day corn. An early planting of cowpeas for hay should be made. The use of an early variety of sorghum planted as soon as danger of frosts is over will help the feed situation a great deal. With pastures severely injured by the drought last summer, it is highly probable that a soiling, or green feed crop will be needed this summer to supplement pastures in order to maintain our dairy cows where work stock. On the better soils where fertilizer is used, sudan grass makes one of the best and quickest feed crops that can be grown.

has got to cut down. I believe the legislature will pass an appropriation bill that will exceed our revenue. If it should, I'll veto it."

On Slot Machines

Regarding slot machines: "The slot machine operators are willing to pay $200 a year to the state to operate legally. They are operating anyway. (G) I find anywhere all over the state, and the state isn't getting anything out of it."

On Horse Racing

Regarding horse racing: "I can't go over there (to Hot Springs) and stop them from running horse races, without violating the law. The law plainly provides that the governor may call out the National Guard to enforce the laws in counties, at the request of the civil authorities." Here the governor got up and wacked on the table. "Who are the civil authorities? Your county officials, elected by the people. I can't go into their territory and stop horse racing, unless they request it. But if it were legalized, the state would get

Will bring truck owners new savings, better performance

Truck owners are always interested in the announcement of new models. The important fact to remember about the new Ford V-8 Truck for 1935 is not merely that it gives you new money-saving features—but that these features have been added to a truck whose economy, performance, stamina have already been proved. You know exactly what you're getting.

For 1935 Ford engineers give you an entirely new development—Forward Load Distribution. This makes possible more uniform tire and brake wear. It improves brake action. It provides a more stable ride—which means protection for fragile loads and improved operation and wear throughout the truck. In addition, with 6 1/2 inches more load space between the cab and the center of the rear axle, the 1935 Ford V-8 permits acute angle turns with full-width semi-trailers.

No matter how efficiently you are now doing your hauling, these and the other features of the 1935 Ford V-8 are important advantages to consider. They are matched by no other truck in America today, regardless of price.

Test the truck you require on your own job. You'll find there's a big meaning in double-duty. Power and strength... speed, handling ease, beauty... the 1935 Ford V-8 Trucks have both combinations. And at a price that saves you money from the beginning.
